BY MINNIS LEE, OF NEW YORK.

A nation stricken of the Lord, Obedient to his mandate, poured Upon the altar of his grace The blood of noble sacrifice, Mothers and wives bowed 'neath the shock, Yielding the eldlings of the flock; Meek sprinkling round each offered chief Th' ancinting oil of sacred grief.

And while the faithful incense flies, in sloud-wreathed glory to the skies, To crown the pledge the great I AM Asks for his abrine "one little lamb."

And Willie, e'er the Shepherd's pride, Hearing the call at eventide, With prayer-clasped palms, Heaven-lifte cye, Says, smilingly, "Lord, here am I!" Oh, precious gift! What gem refined, Now decks a weeping nation's ahrine! We'll name him e'er, o'er all our land, "Willie—the nation's offered lamb!"

And Thou to whom we sacrifice, Look downward through a weeping Christ, Upon the priest and priestess bowed, The foremost of the kneeling crowd.

Ob, bear for them the nation's prayer! Lift up the head bowed 'neath despair! Raise from their eyes the blackened pail, To see She-kinah's glory fall Around their little lamb, the same As round "the Lamb that once was slain," Scaring transfigured to the land Of brightness, with a beck'ning hand.

RELIGIOUS READING FOR THE SOLDIERS.

The meeting to aid in supplying religious reading for the soldiers of our stray, which was held at the Pirst Presbyterian church, last Sabbath evening, was a success. The large church was well filled by a deeply interested audience, which listened with profound attention to the elequent words which fell from the speakers.

large church was well filled by a deeply interseted audience, which listened with profound attention to the elequent words which fell from the speakers.

After singing, reading a portion of scripture, and prayer by the Rev. Dr. Sunderland, the lev. J. W. Alvord, who is the Secretary of the American Tract Society, made a statement of the work which the society is doing.

When this war commenced a shudder ran over the land. A new and awful thing had come upon us. This was but for a moment.
The deep feeling of patriotism filled all honesthearts. Money and munitions of war were furnished freely. Mothers and wives sent forth their chorished ones, with tears and heartaches, yet freely. All classes of society ands its sacrifices upon the altar of country.

But there was another feeling—a Christian feeling. An earnest desire was left by Chrishan hearts, that these brave young men going forth in the field for the defence of our counry's honer, should be girded about by the power and truth of the Gospel. Plous hearts sid a deep anxiety to see these soldiers suppited with the means of grace. And a plan has seen devised. Publications specially adapted for this purpose have been prepared, and we are now distributing them to the soldiers. (Mr.
A. exhibited specimens of the books.)

These works are small, neatly gotten up in substantial binding; are not large and heavy, and consequently can be easily carried in the knapsack or pocket, so that they can be read even on the very battle-field. They contain, in brief, the words of sternal life. Twenty-hve millions of pages of this matter have already been circulated among the regiments.
The Christian Banser, a semi-monthly paper,
containing fresh religious incidents of the war,
a also circulated. One hundred thousand copies of this excellent little publication have even given out. By Sabbath morning, the enire army of the Potomac receive the Gospel, no some of these forms, each week.

Officers and soldiers speak in praise of this moble work. They are eager for the

and not only receive them and read them, but enclose them to friends at home, and the mother, when she sees them, prays with double faith for the absent one. Thus a blessed sympathy is engendered between the parted ones. A large amount of moral degradation is avoided. Sobriety is encouraged. The temperance pledge is circulated. It one regiment, eight nundred have signed the pledge. The chapsins are aided in their work of the ministry. One chaplain had stated to him that a cloud of mercy had broken over the camp of his regiment. Sixty souls had been hopefully converted. This chaplain said he had been thanking God for the mud and the rain. It kept the sodiers in, and enabled him to go from tent to tent and converse with the men on their highest interests, and the results were glorious.

We have just now a double call. Not only the centre, but the right and left wings of the great national army are calling on us for the word of life. Down the Atlantic coust, and in the great West, an earnest call comes for our hooks. We can almost fancy, to-night, we hear and see the pale war-horse in his deadly tramp. Thousands more will undoubtedly be slain. Oh, let us give them the bread of eternal life ere they die!

The Rev. Dr. Stockton, chaplain of the Honse they die! Dr. Stockton, chaplain of the House of Representatives, then addressed the meeting. It is said our Saviour went about doing good. Here we are called upon to follow his example. There is no work so glorious as to lift up and restore to God our fallen fellow-man. The motives which should actuate us in this The motives which should actuate us in this matter, are love to God and love to our fellowmen. We give God the highest honor, when we save a soul to praise him forever. We bless our fellows, in the creation of all those affections and sympathies between the camp and the home, and between the home and the fact, and from all those up to God. God loves the cheerful giver. If ever there was a time to give to a holy cause, this is it. The country, home, liberty—all these—appeal to us to not this work.

home, liberty—all these—appeal to us to me this work.

Hon, J. R. Doolittie, Senator from Wisconsin, was then introduced. He was willing to give his testimony in favor of this work. The mind is constantly active. Man requires intellectual food, and if it is not good, then it will be bad. The great effect of this noble work is to improve the morale and consequently the power of the army. There never was such an army as Gramwell had. The voice of prayer was constantly heard in their camps. So with our soldiers. They should feel that they are not only fighting for home and liberty, but for religion itself.

only fighting for home and liberty, but for religion itself.

We have put too much confidence in numerical strength. The God of battles rules, and he determines the victory. This is what we want our efficers and soldiers to learn.
This is not to be a short war. We may yet have to meet the monarchical powers of Europe before we get through this conflict. Godonly knows what our army will yet have to do.
How important that this army should be rightly educated! All that we can do, for the moral and religious improvement of the army, as citizens and as Christians, we ought to do.

Dr. Sunderland thanked the gentleman for the remarks which had been made. Surely we ought to feel an interest in the men who had left peaceful homes to battle for us. And God has seemed by his providence to call us to this work.

The months of had weather which

work.

The months of bad weather, which every one called a great misfortune, has only been a good opportunity for sowing the good seed in the nearts of six handred thousand mon.

A collection was then taken up, which amounted to about $100, and the meeting was closed.
